

Q. India which support more than 16% of the world population had just 1% share of the global tourist arrival. How come?

Jaal Shah
Group Managing Director
Travel Designer Group, Founder
RezLive.com

It's true, India has unfortunately not seen a higher global tourist arrival share in the past years. However it is expected to grow in the years to come because of the new tourism policy in place and the commendable steps taken by the current government at the centre. Tourism is one of the most important socio economic activity globally and will also be very relevant for growing Indian economy. The government at centre very well understands this point and is looking forward to raise the percent share of the global tourist arrivals in India by projecting India as a Safe, Clean and preferred destination for both foreign and domestic tourists.