

Home > Flying High > RezLive.com announces beta launch of flights vertical

FLYING HIGH

TECH

TRADELINE

RezLive.com announces beta launch of flights vertical

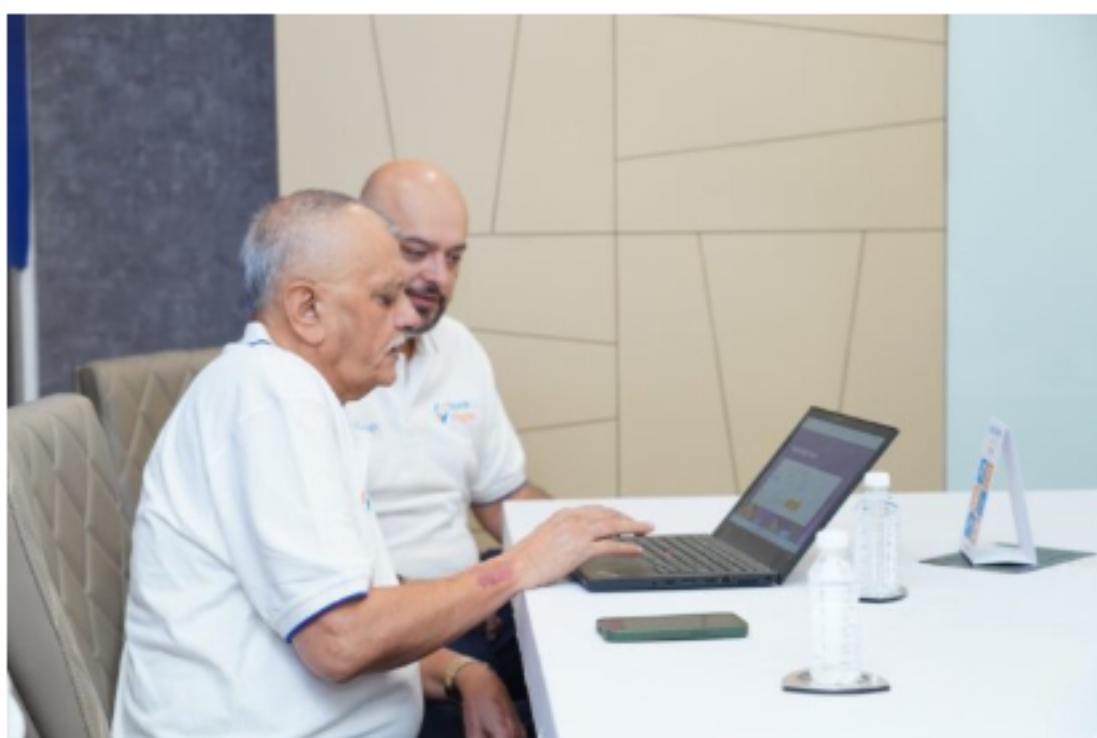

By TTJ - June 10, 2025

RezLive.com, a global B2B travel distribution platform, has announced the beta launch of its much-anticipated Flights vertical. Marking a significant milestone in RezLive's product evolution, the very first flight booking was made by Kalpesh Shah, Chairman of Travel Designer Group.

Speaking on the occasion, Kalpesh Shah shared, "It is a moment of pride to witness the next chapter of RezLive's journey unfold. We have always strived to bring efficiency and innovation to the travel trade, and the addition of flights is a major step forward. I am delighted to make the first booking myself as a symbolic start to this exciting expansion."

Currently in its development phase, the Flights product will undergo further enhancements and refinements before becoming broadly available. The commercial rollout will begin in a phased manner, starting Q3 of 2025 in India, followed by global availability for RezLive's extensive agent network.

Jaal Shah, Group Managing Director, Travel Designer Group, added, "With the successful beta launch, we are now geared to offer our partners a more comprehensive booking experience. Flights will complement our existing portfolio and enable agents to complete full trip itineraries within a single platform. We plan a phased global rollout, starting with India in Q3 2025 and extending to our agents worldwide in the following quarters."

The Flights launch marks another step in RezLive's commitment to becoming a one-stop travel technology ecosystem, reinforcing its vision to simplify B2B travel distribution with cutting-edge, agent-friendly solutions.